PETS HELPING SENIORS

Pets improve our quality of life. Living with a pet can reduce cognitive decline, feelings of isolation and loneliness, and provide opportunities for exercise, socializing, and community involvement.

SENIORS HELPING PETS

Fostering from local shelters and rescue organizations provides pets the much needed love and attention in a peaceful, safe environment that pets need to thrive. Fostering in your home frees up space at the shelter for additional pets in need, allows pets to decompress and prepares them for adoption in a forever home.

VOLUNTEER TO BUILD COMMUNITY SUPPORT FOR SENIORS

If you can't foster a pet but still want to help, become part of a safety and support network for seniors who may need pet care due to illness, accident, or hospitalization.

- Even a short reprieve from kennel life is beneficial and soothing for pets, allowing them to reset.
